

Conflict Minerals Statement

Dear Valued Customer,

Conflict Minerals, Tantalum, Tin, Tungsten, and Gold (a.k.a. 3TG) are so-called because these minerals are mined primarily in areas of Africa that often experience various conflicts. It could be military, economic, or human rights violations that occur during the mining of the 3TG. The region of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) and the surrounding countries were the focus of Section 1502 of the U.S. Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act in 2010 (The Act). The Act brought worldwide attention to the DRC region and the 3TG. Since 2010 there have been other regulations over the concern of responsible sourcing requiring companies to conduct due diligence examination of supply chains.

The Act requires certain issuers that report to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) under section 13a and 15d of The Act to provide disclosures regarding the use of conflict minerals. While Navitar is a privately held company and not required to report to the SEC under The Act, we acknowledge we are an integral part of your supply chain. We will, therefore, perform our due diligence to be part of the solution against human rights atrocities in the DRC region. We will never knowingly use any conflict minerals in products designed and manufactured by Navitar, Inc. Further, we have performed due diligence by contacting all of our suppliers that could use any of the 3TG and asked them to return a completed Conflict Minerals Reporting Template (CMRT), available from <http://www.responsiblemineralsinitiative.org/reporting-templates/cmrt/>

All CMRTs received from suppliers have been compiled into the Navitar CMRT and found on our corporate website <https://navitar.com/contact/compliance/>. Our CMRT will be updated annually, so check back often for the latest information available. If you do not find what you need, please contact me.

Sincerely,

David Gilfoy
